How To Make People Laugh (making people laugh Book 1) Don Gillett

It's the unexpected that makes us laugh, that takes life from the hum-drum to the hilarious. This book is a short course on how the "funny comes alive" through actual life situations in the authors life.

The first incident gets funny when the rabbits eat a hole through the lattice surrounding the deck. The author tries to get the rabbits to move by using an unexpected liquid recommended to him, but only sunburns the grass. then there comes confusion whether they are The City's Hares or God's hairs and, now what to do with them?

The second situation is when the author is left home to "watch the kids". What seems like a hum-drum situation turns funny when the parents don't get back soon enough. It's 11:30 A.M. The author watches the kid start snacking, "just a little" but it doesn't stop there. Then the baby wants to ride the puppy and then dirties her diaper. How did he get out of changing the diaper. Read it and see.

The third turns to hilarity when the author exits I 80 onto a state highway, forgets to adjust the cruise control only to meet a policeman who dutifully stops him. Then life takes a very funny turn.
