If you're interested in Centre, you've probably already visited the campus, checked out the academics, or met the students, but what I hope this book can offer you is the insight of what being a student at Centre is like. Making the final choice of where to spend the next four years of your life can be a daunting task, especially when you consider that the college decision will color the rest of your life through networking, academic choices, and four years of hard work (no pressure, really). Information is really any prospective student's best asset when determining their college of choice, and I think this guide will provide that knowledge.
